Inspired by the vivid patterns of Fordite, an agate-like enamel which is a by-product of the automotive industry, this bench was coated with eight different layers of paint, then sanded at various intensities, allowing for its various layers to be revealed.

Appearing extremely slender when viewed from the side, the Belly Bench is devoid of screws, metal fasteners or power tools. The handcrafted individual segments make use of exquisite traditional joinery in recycled old Burma teak wood, thereby addressing issues of sustainability pertaining to both resources and craftsmen. The piece is signed with an inlay of hand-cut brass. A complete knockdown construction allows for the table to be disassembled with ease, thus facilitating easy transportation and re-assembly.
